They may be specially helpful to you, if you are going through difficult times; if you are suffering from wounded memories, from divorce or loss of a loved one, or want to grow in your self-esteem. They invite you to a period of disciplined reflection that will give you resources for your spiritual pilgrimage. They have been used by large and small congregations as a resource for members' meditations during Lent, and by individuals at other times of the year. A grieving widow writes ... Your book is a priceless treasure. I find myself re-reading and finding new pearls for understanding. I read a page per day and review the previous days' page for new insights. This comes at a time in my life when the worst has happened. I'm still struggling with my grief. A seasoned and successful pastor writes ... I have been greatly encouraged and comforted by your meditations, scripture and prayers. I had not realized how out of touch I have been with myself. At many points it seemed to me you were reading my mind and my heart. For years, since my divorce, I have been struggling with many deep feelings. Your gentle advice, admonishments, and comforting thoughts have greatly lifted my spirits. .
